France's President Emmanuel Macron participates in the commemoration ceremony of the 100th anniversary of the end of World War I in Les Invalides in Paris, France, November 11, 2018. REUTERS/Lionel Bonaventure PARIS (Reuters) - President Emmanuel Macron said on Thursday he intended to travel to the western French region of Brittany to mark Armistice Day and pay tribute to French soldiers who died in 1918 fighting in the World War One and World War Two. "I intend to go to Brittany on November 11 to mark Armistice Day, to a region that has always had a special attachment to France, and to pay homage to those who died during the World War One and World War Two," Macron said in a statement. Macron said he would also visit the small island of Ile de Re where, in 1918, thousands of French soldiers were buried. The Armistice with Germany was signed at 11 a.m. on the 11th day of the month, marking the end of the worst war in human history. France lost more than 1 million men and women in the war and the #RihardsMustFall movement has held several demonstrations in recent weeks to demand an end to France's silence on the role of its colonial army in the death and dying of indigenous people in northern Africa and elsewhere. Macron also said he intended to visit the Brittany region on
