ous West Coast Kitchen Gorgeous West Coast Kitchen After a recent spring and summer spent working at our Phoenix kitchen remodel, I thought I would share some of the inspiration and interesting news I've heard while working on the project. I've been hearing a lot of buzz that we are experiencing the resurgence of the west coast style kitchen, and with that I thought I'd share some wonderful kitchen inspiration I've collected during my work on a variety of custom homes. If you're looking to plan a kitchen makeover of your own, I hope these photos will inspire you. Above, designer Debbie Crooks was inspired by the sharp-edged cutout cabinets and stainless steel appliances on this 1983 kitchen in San Jose, California. "The clean lines and modern lines help allude to the sleek styling of today," she says. The stylish open floor plan and cherry wood cabinetry in the dining room showcase accent pieces in pecan, eucalyptus and oak. A One Group of Patterned Wood Cabinets Boosted The Home Owners Experience By Deb Crooks It all started with a simple kitchen makeover that turned into a complete remodel. Remodeling is a fascinating process that leaves you with a completely different kitchen and a more functional space. For this project, I started with a tear-down that revealed the old floor plan, a blocking scheme, wall thickness and paint colors. The kitchen was designed in a 1970s California look with a spacious eating area, a loggia-style new kitchen, and an open doorway that leads to the guest bath. I added floating cabinetry, tile backsplashes, a breakfast bar and slate floors. One important decision for homeowners was to increase the amount of parking in the larger guest cottage. We also added extended traffic lanes and improved the roads with piers. The charming front porch was one of the after-construction features on the home. In the new master bedroom, designer Marie Coates of Clair Olivier Interior Design Inc. kept a modern sensibility, but felt that the space needed added expression. "We wanted the master to open to the outdoors with a view of the hills behind the house. One group of patterned wood cabinets, as well as a few accents in Corian and painted metal draws the eye out, giving the room an airy feel." The 1960s ceiling-to-floor sisal rug along
