Object Object] A: Description As the first line of defense against airborne contaminants, normal surgical masks filter, trap and contain bioaerosols and pathogens before they reach the lungs. The N95 mask is a proven solution for these challenges, providing a high-filtration seal around the mouth and nose, while the extended eye coverage provides a shield against particles, debris and fluids. • One N95 mask is enough to provide protection for one person. • They are designed to fit snugly around the face, head and neck. • The vents on the mask allow air to flow in while providing protection against liquids and particles. • Filters are capable of trapping particles as small as 0.3 microns, making them effective at filtering down to 10 microns The protective capabilities of our

Emergency and critical care for visitors in ambulances. Our aim was to determine the level of knowledge of emergency and critical care for visitors in ambulances in case of an on-the-spot emergency and which resources were used to obtain this knowledge. A cross-sectional survey was designed to determine the level of knowledge and the resources for providing it. The survey was completed by all ambulance staff in the ambulance control room and at base stations to determine emergency/critical care knowledge and resources. SPSS-18 was used for analysis. One hundred and forty-one staff, 74% male, were surveyed. One hundred and nineteen staff (83.6%) claimed to know which resources were available. The correct answer for the first aid 6d1f23a050
