Conflict of Interest Commissioner seeking a review of expenditures by the provincial government on a satellite office in Vernon. "This is a first step towards getting to the root of the problem," said Coleman. "I suspect that there's much more coming on this issue. It's going to take time, but we have to establish the truth." Coleman said when the BC Liberal Party was in government, constituency offices were "loved and cherished" as a sign that a team's members were "part of the fabric of the community." Those community offices, he said, "are important to the democratic process and the BC Liberal Party, and I believe that is what we were doing." The BC Liberal Party came to the Legislature 6d1f23a050
